

ANNEX D-1: EXTENSION OF SKILLSFUTURE MID-CAREER TRAINING ALLOWANCE TO PART-TIME TRAINING

The SkillsFuture Level-Up Programme (“SFLP”) was introduced at Budget 2024. It seeks to support mid-career Singaporeans aged 40 and above to upskill and reskill to stay competitive and relevant amidst a rapidly changing economy.

The SkillsFuture Mid-Career Training Allowance, which is one component of the SFLP, provides additional financial support of up to 24 months for mid-career individuals pursuing long-form training. As announced at Budget 2024, eligible individuals who take time off work to pursue full-time long-form training can tap on the Training Allowance to partially offset the loss in income. The amount of full-time training allowance is equivalent to 50% of their average income over the latest available 12-month period, capped at $3,000 per month.

To better support employed mid-career Singaporeans who wish to pursue substantive training on a part-time basis, we will extend the SkillsFuture Mid-Career Training Allowance to selected part-time long-form training programmes. This will help trainees defray incidental training expenses (e.g., books, materials, transport).

The part-time training allowance will be a fixed allowance of $300 per month. Every individual can receive up to 24 months of the SkillsFuture Mid-Career Training Allowance throughout their lifetime (i.e., shared lifetime cap of 24 months for both full-time and part-time training).

More details, including course coverage, will be provided at the Ministry of Education’s Committee of Supply.
